GENDER, HOME & IDENTITY
Nuer Repatriation to Southern Sudan
KATARZYNA GRABSKA
During the civil wars in Southern Sudan (1983-2005) many Sudanese, including many Nuer, were in refugee camps in Kenya and Ethiopia, repatriating to southern Sudan only after the comprehensive Peace Agreement. This book follows the lives of a group of Nuer, who escaped the wars, and then returned to try to recreate a sense of home, community and nation. Conceptualising conflict-induced displacement as a catalyst of social change, this book explores the transformation of gender and generational relations among southern Sudanese Nuer in the aftermath of the war and the complexity of social change in the context of forced displacement and state formation in what is now South Sudan.

DISRUPTING TERRITORIES
Land, Commodification and Conflict in Sudan
Edited by JÖRG GERTEL, RICHARD ROTTENBURG & SANDRA CALKINS
This book examines the new dynamics of land-grabbing in Sudan as territorial claims to land and resources continue to be challenged by small-scale and international actors. Through a political economy of the region, and a diverse collection of case studies, the contributors reveal how pastoral livelihoods are increasingly being differentiated, regrouped in new clusters and exposed to new risks.

THE STATE OF POST-CONFLICT RECONSTRUCTION
Land, Urban Development and State-building in Juba, Southern Sudan
NASEEM BADIEY
Examining the social, political and economic dynamics in Juba, Southern Sudan, following the 2005 CPA, this book reconceptualizes post-conflict reconstruction as a social process underpinned by negotiation. The author identifies disputes over land, competition over political jurisdiction, bureaucratic corruption, and informal land allocation. She demonstrates how actors interpreted the CPA in line with their economic and political interests, providing new insights not only into the shaping of Southern Sudan but raising fundamental questions over whose interests would be represented in the soon to be independent state of South Sudan.

DEALING WITH GOVERNMENT IN SOUTH SUDAN
Histories of Chiefship, Community and State
CHERRY LEONARDI
Chiefs in South Sudan have become the focus of much attention in recent years as national and international policy-makers attempt to build peace and design structures of government in the newly independent nation. This book addresses a significant paradox in African studies more widely: if chiefs were the product of colonial states, why have they survived or revived in recent decades? This study will be of particular importance not only to scholars of Sudan, of Africa and of local governance, but also to policy-makers and practitioners working in South Sudan.
