MALORY AND HIS EUROPEAN CONTEMPORARIES
Adapting Late Medieval Arthurian Romance Collections
MIRIAM EDLICH-MUTH
The late-medieval adaptions and compilations of the Arthurian story are a European phenomenon that has sparked both mystification and controversy. Often dismissed as nostalgic recreations that attempt to halt the literary tide, these ambitious projects saw adaptors from across Western Europe combining a vast array of prose and verse sources from different languages into encyclopedic narrative chronologies of King Arthur and his court. Ranging from ornate verse adaptations to heavily condensed prose works, the resulting texts reflect a process of translating, cutting and arranging Arthurian material into new literary incarnations, which nonetheless retain recognisable versions of the Arthurian story. This study re-evaluates Malory's Morte Darthur and other contemporary collections, showing the complex ways in which they reshape their material.

REWITING ARTHURIAN ROMANCE IN RENAISSANCE FRANCE
From Manuscript to Printed Book
JANE H.M. TAYLOR
Arthurian romance in Renaissance France has long been treated by modern critics as marginal—although manuscripts and printed volumes, adaptations and rewritings, show just how much writers, and especially publishers, saw its potential attractions for readers. This book is the first full-length study of what happens to Arthur in the age of print, exploring the fascinations of Arthurian romance in the sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries, and studying the printers, publishers and booksellers who gave it new life.

SIR THOMAS MALORY:
LE MORTE DARTHUR
2 Volume Set
Edited by P.J.C. FIELD
Malory completed his Morte Darthur before March 1470. The manuscript is lost, but the two most important surviving witnesses to its text were both produced shortly afterwards: Caxton's edition of 1485 and the Winchester manuscript, known to have existed around 1480 but lost until 1934. All major modern scholarly editions have favoured one of these to the point of preserving corrigible error. The present edition is based on the Winchester manuscript, but treats it merely as the most important single piece of evidence for what Malory intended, and the default text unless other readings are more probable.

ROMANCE AND ITS CONTEXTS IN FIFTEENTH-CENTURY ENGLAND
Politics, Piety and Penitence
RALUCA L. RADULESCU
Although the anonymous pious Middle English romances and Sir Thomas Malory's Morte Darthur have rarely been studied in relation to each other, they in fact share at least two thematic concerns, vocabularies of suffering and genealogical concerns, as this book demonstrates. By examining a broad cultural and political framework stretching from Richard II's deposition to the end of the Wars of the Roses through the prism of piety, politics and penitence, the author draws attention to the specific circumstances in which Sir Isumbras, Sir Gawther, Roberd of Cisely, Henry Lovelich's History of the Holy Grail and Malory's Morte were read in fifteenth-century England. In the case of the pious romances this implies a study of their reception long after their original composition or translation centuries earlier; in Lovelich's case, an examination of metropolitan culture leads to an opening of the discussion to French romance models as well as English chronicle writing.

TRADITIONS AND INNOVATIONS IN THE STUDY OF MEDIEVAL LITERATURE

The Influence of Derek Brewer
Edited by CHARLOTTE BREWER & BARRY WINEDEATT

Derek Brewer (1923-2008) was one of the most influential medievalists of the twentieth century, first through his own publications and teaching, and later as a pioneer in academic publishing. Essays in this collection take their starting point from his ideas and interests, before offering their own fresh thinking in those key areas of medieval studies in which he pioneered innovations which remain central, from Chaucer's knight and knighthood virtues to the wholeness of Malory's Morte Darthur.

FRENCH ARTHURIAN LITERATURE V
The Lay of Mantel
Edited by GLYN S. BURGESS & LESLIE C. BROOK

The Old French lay of Mantel belongs to a group of anonymous lays composed in the late twelfth or thirteenth century, which usually deal with some aspect of love, usually in an aristocratic, courtly setting. Here, this is Arthur's court, with its well-known characters involved, and the tone is satiric and comic; the story is a chastity test, which the ladies of the court undergo in public by donning the mantle - if it does not fit, their behaviour is betrayed. The popularity of the lay is attested by its survival in five manuscripts, an unusually high number. The text itself is accompanied by a facing translation, and presented with introduction, notes, bibliography, and indices.

ARTHRURIAN LITERATURE SERIES

ARThURIAN LITERATURE XXX
Edited by ELIZABETH ARCHIBALD & DAVID F. JOHSON

The richness and interdisciplinarity of the Arthurian tradition are well represented by the essays collected here, which range from early Celtic texts to twentieth-century children's books, and include discussion of Welsh, Irish, English, French and Latin material in both literary and historical contexts. Many of the articles focus on less well-known late medieval versions of the legend, a somewhat neglected area until recently. Meanwhile, a contemporary approach to Sir Gawain and the Green Knight views the poem from the perspective of forest ecology.

SHAPING COURTLINESS IN MEDIEVAL FRANCE
Essays in Honor of Matilda Tomaryn Bruckner
Edited by DANIEL E. O'SULLIVAN & LAURIE SHEPARD

Focused on works written in the Francophone world between the twelfth and fifteenth centuries, they examine courtliness as both an historical privilege and a literary ideal, and as a concept that operated on and was informed by complex social and economic realities. The volume as a whole, uniting philosophical, theoretical, philological, and cultural approaches, demonstrates that medieval “courtliness” is an ideal that fascinates us to this day. It is thus a fitting tribute to the scholarship of Matilda Tomaryn Bruckner, in its exploration of the profound and wide-ranging ideas that define her contribution to the field.

THE GRAIL, THE QUEST, AND THE WORLD OF ARTHUR
Edited by NORMIS J. LACY

The theme of the quest in Arthurian literature is explored in the essays presented here, covering French, Dutch, Norse, German, and English texts.

THE CONTINUATIONS OF CRÉTIEN'S PERCEVAL
Content and Construction, Extension and Ending
LEAH TETHER

The Perceval Continuations constitute a vast body of material which incorporates four separately authored Continuations, each of which seeks to further, in some way, the unfinished Perceval of Chrétien de Troyes—though they are not merely responses to his work. Here, these fascinating texts are used as a lens for examining, defining and distinguishing the whole concept of a Continuation.

ROMANCE IN MEDIEVAL HEROES AND ANTI-HEROES
Edited by NEIL CARTLIDGE
Medieval romances so consistently celebrate the triumphs of heroes and the discomfiture of villains that they discourage recognition of just how morally ambiguous, antisocial or even downright sinister their protagonists can be, and, correspondingly, of just how admirable or impressive their defeated opponents often are. This tension between the heroic and the antiheroic makes a major contribution to the dramatic complexity of medieval romance, but it is not an aspect of the genre that has been frequently discussed up until now. Focusing on fourteen distinct characters and character-types in medieval narrative, this book illustrates the range of different ways in which the imaginative power and appeal of romance-texts often depend on contradictions implicit in the very ideal of heroism.

THE CONTE DU GRAAL CYCLE
Chrétien de Troyes’s Perceval, the Continuations, and French Arthurian Romance
THOMAS HINTON
Chrétien de Troyes’s late twelfth-century Conte du Graal has inspired writers and scholars from the moment of its composition to the present day. In one of the first studies to treat the Conte du Graal and its continuations as a unified work, Hinton considers the whole corpus as a narrative cycle. Widening the scope of enquiry to consider the corpus’s influence on thirteenth-century verse romances, this study re-situates the Conte du Graal cycle as a vital element in the evolution of Arthurian literature.

WOMEN’S POWER IN LATE MEDIEVAL ROMANCE
AMY N. VINES
The cultural and social power of women in the Middle Ages is perhaps hard to trace, with evidence for it scarce. This book argues that medieval romances provide a central, but under-explored, source for and examples of such authority. By reassessing the influence exerted by female characters, in a spectrum that includes both intellectual and chivalric aid and, in some cases, patronage, it considers how they functioned as models of cultural, intellectual, and social authority in medieval literary texts.

CHRÉTIEN DE TROYES IN PROSE
The Burgundian Erec and Cligès
Translated by JOAN TASKER GRIMBERT & CAROL J. CHASE
In the middle of the fifteenth century two anonymous writers “translated” into prose Chrétien de Troyes’s first verse romances, Erec and Cligès, for the circle of Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy. This volume presents the first English prose translations of the writings, accompanied by an introduction presenting the historical, cultural, and literary context, and notes.

GERMAN ROMANCE IV
Lancelot
ULRICH VON ZATZIKHOVEN
Edited and Translated by KATHLEEN J. MEYER
Ulrich von Zatzikhoven’s Lancelot, dating from the end of the twelfth century, is a verse translation into Middle High German of what was probably an Anglo-Norman romance, now lost. This volume presents the first full translation into English, with a new, facing edition of the Middle High German text. It is accompanied by an introduction, variant readings and notes to the translation.

THE INTERLACE STRUCTURE OF THE THIRD PART OF THE PROSE LANCELOT
FRANK BRANDSMA
Thematically and as a narrative technique, the complex weaving together of many different story-telling strands comes to its full development in the intriguing conclusion of the Prose Lancelot. The intricate structure and the many different narrative threads of this work are here skilfully analysed, showing them to be a major new development in literary technique.

PERCEFOREST
The Prehistory of King Arthur’s Britain
Edited by THOMAS HINTON
Translated by NIGEL BRYANT
Perceforest is one of the largest and certainly the most extraordinary of the late Arthurian romances, and is the subject of rapidly increasing attention and research. It is set in pagan times, and tells the history of Britain before Arthur, with many extraordinary and magical adventures. Because of its enormous length—it runs to over a million words—Nigel Bryant has provided a version which gives a full synopsis of the plot and all the episodes linking extensive passages of translation.

THINKING THROUGH CHRÉTIEN DE TROYES
ZRINKA STAHULJAK, VIRGINIE GREENE, SARAH KAY, SHARON KINOSHITA & PEGGY MCCrackEN
This co-written book challenges assumptions about Chrétien. In lively exchanges, its five authors reassess the relationship between lyric and romance, between individuality and social conditions, and between psychology and medieval philosophy.
