THE MONTPPELLIER CODEX
The Final Fascicle
Edited by CATHERINE A. BRADLEY & KAREN DESMOND

The final section of the Montpellier Codex is analysed in full for the first time, with major implications for late-medieval music. This small book, packed with gorgeous gold leaf illuminations, historiated initials, and exquisite music calligraphy is one of the most famous of all surviving music manuscripts, fundamental to understandings of the development of thirteenth- and fourteenth-century polyphonic composition. It explores the manuscript's production, dating, function, and notation, offering close-readings of individual works, which illuminate compositionally progressive features of the repertoire as well as its interactions with existing musical and poetic traditions.

PUBLISHING THE GRAIL IN MEDIEVAL & RENAISSANCE FRANCE
LEAH TETHER

The Grail is one of the most enduring literary motifs in publishing history. But the nature and reception of the Grail have not remained static, as authors and publishers across history have reimagined, reinterpreted and re-packaged Grail literature. This book analyses the developing publication practices associated with French Grail literature in medieval and Renaissance France. Arguing for pre-print book production as constituting an early incarnation of a publishing trade, the distinctive investigation of manuscript and early-print evidence brings medieval and early-modern publishers and their concepts of both product and market into focus.

GRAPHIC DEVICES & THE EARLY DECORATED BOOK
Edited by MICHELLE P. BROWN, ILDAR H. GARIPZANOV & BENJAMIN C. TILGHMAN

Adding to a growing scholarship in “graphacy”, the essays in this volume consider the “graphic images” which appear from the fourth century CE in illuminated manuscripts and other medieval media: inscribed letters and decorative symbols, used to convey information on the text and to elucidate its meaning. Among the individual topics addressed are monograms; the appearance of the cross in early medieval Christian manuscripts; and Anglo-Saxon decorated initials.

THE MANUSCRIPT & MEANING OF MALORY’S MOYTE DARUTH
Rubrication, Commemoration, Memorialization
K.S. WHETTER

The red-ink names that decorate the Winchester manuscript of Malory’s Morte Darthur are striking; yet until now, no-one has asked why the rubrication exists. This book argues that the striking arrangement of the physical layout of the Morte in its manuscript context is likely to have been the product of authorial design.

UNIVERSAL CHRONICLES IN THE HIGH MIDDLE AGES
Edited by MICHELE CAMPPIANO & HENRY BAINTON

Universal Chronicles narrate the history of the whole world from the time of its creation up to the present day, uniting various strands of history into a unified story. Taking the formal and metaphysical coherence of the Universal Chronicle as their starting point, these essays offer a variety of new perspectives on the genre.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF VERNACULAR HISTORY IN THE ANGO-NORMAN PROSE BRUT CHRONICLE
The Manuscript Culture of Late Medieval England
JULIA MARVIN

The prose Brut chronicle was the most popular vernacular work of the late Middle Ages in England, setting a standard for vernacular historical writing, but until recently it has attracted little scholarly attention. This book combines a study of the chronicle’s sources, content, and methods of composition, with its manuscript contexts.

THE MATERIAL TEXT IN WYCLIFFITE BIBLICAL SCHOLARSHIP
Inscription and Sacred Truth
DAVID LAVINSKY

The reform movement known as Wycliffism or Lollardy is now a familiar feature of the premodern intellectual and religious landscape, yet Wycliffite biblical scholarship itself has escaped sustained attention. This book examines Wycliffism, moving from academic biblical study to the material contexts of English book and manuscript production, considering changing notions of biblical materiality itself.

THE INDIVIDUALS BEHIND MANUSCRIPTS

THE THORNEY LIBER VITAE (LONDON, BRITISH LIBRARY, ADDITIONAL MS 40,000, FOLS 1-12R)
Edition, Facsimile and Study
Edited by LYNDA ROLLASON

Begun at Thorney Abbey in Cambridgeshire in the late eleventh century and continuing into the twelfth, the Thorney Liber vitae records the many hundreds of names of those associated with the abbey. Apart from its significance as a memorial book, it is of considerable interest for historical, linguistic and prosopographical research. This volume provides the first printed edition of the text, and a facsimile, together with a full introduction and studies of its most important aspects.

ROBERT THORNTON & HIS BOOKS
Essays on the Lincoln and London Thornton Manuscripts
Edited by SUSANNA FEIN & MICHAEL JOHNSTON

The books of Robert Thornton (c.1397- c.1465) comprise a rare repository of varied English and Latin literary, religious and medical texts that survived the dissolution of the monasteries. The essays collected here provide a focussed light on Thornton, as editors and scholars have long been deeply interested in uncovering his habits as a private, amateur scribe.

THE AUCHINLECK MANUSCRIPT: NEW PERSPECTIVES
Edited by SUSANNA FEIN
The Auchinleck manuscript (Edinburgh, National Library of Scotland Advocates MS 19.2.1) is of crucial importance as the first book designed to convey in the English language an ambitious range of secular romance and chronicle, but its origins are mysterious. These essays define the parameters of present-day Auchinleck studies, seeking to answer a number of questions as to its making, contents, scribes, and other matters.

A DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF THE MEDIEVAL MANUSCRIPTS IN THE LIBRARY OF PETERHOUSE, CAMBRIDGE

R.M. THOMSON
Founded in 1284, Peterhouse is the University of Cambridge’s oldest college, and by the late Middle Ages it had built up a substantial reference library. This collection represents the remains of this medieval library, a collection with a very particular character and interest as almost all of the surviving books were in Peterhouse before the Reformation.
