Motets constitute the most important polyphonic genre of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, intrinsically involved in its early development. This volume aims to provide a comprehensive guide to them, from a number of different disciplines and perspectives. It addresses such crucial matters such as how the motet developed; the rich interplay of musical, poetic, and intertextual modes of meaning specific to the genre; and the changing social and historical circumstances surrounding motets in medieval France, England, and Italy.

THE SEGOVIA MANUSCRIPT

The Segovia Manuscript

A European Musical Repertory in Spain, c.1500

Edited by WOLFGANG FUHRMANN & CRISTINA URCHUEGUIA

The Segovia Manuscript (Cathedral of Segovia, Archivo Capitular) has puzzled musicologists ever since its rediscovery at the beginning of the twentieth century. It is unique: no other manuscript of the period transmits a comparable blend of late fifteenth-century music consisting of 204 sacred works and vernacular pieces in Flemish, French, Italian, and Spanish. The essays here aim to treat every dimension of this fascinating source. New discoveries help date the manuscript and explain how it came to Segovia; particular attention is paid to a number of conflicting attributions is considered afresh. WOLFGANG FUHRMANN is Professor of Musicology at Leipzig University; CRISTINA URCHUEGUIA is Professor of Musicology at the University of Bern. ALLEGRI’S MISERERE IN THE SISTINE CHAPEL

“The Miserere” attributed to the Italian composer Gregorio Allegri (1582-1652) is one of the most popular, often performed and recorded choral pieces of late Renaissance/early Baroque music. This book is the first detailed account of this iconic work’s performance history in the Sistine Chapel, in particular focussing on its heyday in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Rather than looking at the Miserere as a work on paper, the key to its genesis – as this book reveals – can only be found in a performance context. The book concludes with a look at today’s performance practices. Appendices present key source transcriptions and two performance editions. GRAMHAM O’REILLY is founder and conductor of the French-based Ensemble William Byrd, which recorded the Miserere from a late Vatican manuscript in 2000.

Funeral Elegies in Early Modern England

K. DAWN GRAPES

This book looks at the musical culture of death in early modern England. In particular, it examines musical funeral elegies and the people related to commemorative tribute – the departed, the composer, potential patrons, and family and friends of the deceased – to determine the place these musical-poetic texts held in a society in which issues of death were discussed regularly, producing a constant, pervasive shadow over everyday life.

Music, Myth and Story in Medieval and Early Modern Culture

Edited by KATHERINE BUTLER & SAMANTHA BASSLER

Myths and stories offer a window onto medieval and early modern musical culture. Far from merely offering material for musical settings, authoritative tales from classical mythology, ancient history and the Bible were treated as foundations for musical knowledge. Looking beyond the well-known figure of Orpheus, this collection explores the myriad stories that shaped not only musical thought, but also its styles, techniques, and practices during this period. It shows that music itself performed and created knowledge in ways parallel to myth, and worked in tandem with old and new tales to construct social, political, and philosophical views.

KATHERINE BUTLER is a senior lecturer in music at Northumbria University; SAMANTHA BASSLER is a musicologist of cultural studies, a teaching artist, and an adjunct professor in the New York metropolitan area.

The Harmonious Musick of John Jenkins

Volume Two: The Fantasia-Suites

Edited by WOLFGANG FUHRMANN & CRISTINA URCHUEGUIA

John Jenkins (1592–1678) was both the most prolific and the most esteemed of English composers in the fifty years or so between the death of Byrd and the rise of Purcell. During his long life he was employed as a resident musician when the consort fantasia of viols was in its prime. Jenkins’ preferred medium was instrumental music, and he came to maturity in the 1620s, when the consort fantasia of viols was in its prime. This book – the second in a two-volume study of Jenkins and his music – focuses on Jenkins’ prodigious output of fantasia-suites. It is profusely illustrated with music examples, and virtually every work receives individual comment.

Piety and Polyphony in Sixteenth-Century Holland
The Choirbooks of St Peter's Church, Leiden
ERIC JAS
The musical culture of the Low Countries in the early modern period was a flourishing one, apparent beyond the big cathedrals and monasteries, and reaching down to smaller parish churches. Unfortunately, very few manuscripts containing the music have survived from the period, and what we know rests to a considerable extent on six music books that were painted in Leiden. This volume presents a study of the books, putting them into a wider context, looking at their contents (including works by such composers as Josquin des Prez and Clemens non Papa), and showing how they were used. It also offers insights into the laity’s involvement with music and the church at the time.
ERIC JAS is a lecturer in music at the University of Utrecht.

The Telemann Compendium
STEVEN ZOHN
The Telemann Compendium is the first guide to research on the composer in any language. Although the scholarly ‘Telemann Renaissance’ is now a half-century old, there has never been a book intended to serve as a gateway for further study and the field of Telemann studies has been slow to develop in the English-speaking world. And yet the veritable explosion of performances, both live and recorded, of the composer’s music in recent decades has won him an ever-increasing following among musicians and concert-goers worldwide. As with other books in the Composer Compendia series, the book includes a brief biography, dictionary, works-list, and selective bibliography.

Before the Baton
Musical Direction and Conducting in Stuart and Georgian Britain
PETER HOLMAN
The focus of this book is on direction in two strands of music making in Stuart and Georgian Britain: choral music from Restoration cathedrals to the oratorio tradition deriving from Handel, and music in the theatre from the Jacobean masque to nineteenth-century opera. Part social and musical history based on new research into surviving performing material, documentary sources and visual evidence, and part polemic intended to question the use of modern baton conducting in pre-nineteenth-century music. Before the Baton throws new light on many hitherto dark areas, though the heart of the book is an extended discussion of the evidence relating to Handel’s operas, oratorios and choral music.
PETER HOLMAN is Emeritus Professor of Historical Musicology at Leeds University.

Bach and Mozart
Essays on the Enigma of Genius
ROBERT L. MARSHALL
The essays in this volume, by one of America’s leading authorities on Bach and Mozart, serve a single objective: to promote a deeper understanding of those two great composers both as supremely gifted creators and as human beings. After a preliminary historiographical contemplation of the “Century of Bach and Mozart,” fifteen numbered chapters follow in roughly chronological succession. Among the issues addressed: the artistic consequences of Bach’s orphanhood, his relationship to Martin Luther, his attitude toward Jews, his relationship to his sons, the stages of his stylistic development, and his position in the history of music; and, moving to Mozart, the composer’s portrayal in Amadeus, his wit, his indebtedness to J. S. Bach, and aspects of his compositional process. The volume concludes with a factually informed speculation about what Mozart is likely to have done and to have composed, had he lived on for another decade or more.

Organ-building in Georgian and Victorian England
The Work of Gray and Davison, 1772-1890

NICHOLAS THISTLETHWAITE

This book charts the firm's evolution from a typical instrument-making workshop of the mid-Georgian period into a Victorian organ factory. At the same time, it describes changes in musical taste and organ design and liturgical use. Among other topics, the book discusses provincial music festivals, the town hall organ, decorative music-making and popular entertainment, the building of churches and the impact on church music of the Evangelical and Tractarian movements. It will appeal to organ aficionados interested in historical organ manufacturing, design and workshop practice as well as scholars of eighteenth- and nineteenth-century music and cultural historians.

NICHOLAS THISTLETHWAITE has written extensively on the history of the English organ and other aspects of English church music, and his book, The Making of the Victorian Organ (1990) is recognised as the standard work on the subject.

Self-Quotation in Schubert
"Ave Maria," the Second Piano Trio, and Other Works

SCOTT MESSING

Enthusiasts and experts have long relished Schubert's quotations of his own music. This study centers on a previously unidentified pairing: "Ave Maria," one of his most beloved songs, and the Piano Trio no. 2, a masterpiece that holds a unique position in his career. Messing's Self-Quotation in Schubert interrogates the concept of self-quotation from the standpoints of terminology and authorial intent, and it demonstrates, for the first time, how Schubert's practice of self-quotation relates to prevailing practices in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Messing goes on to analyze in detail the musical relationships between the two works and to investigate the circumstances that led Schubert to compose each of them.

SCOTT MESSING is Charles A. Dana Professor of Music Emeritus at Alma College.

Discovering Berlioz
Essays, Reviews, Talks

DAVID CAIRNS

For the past half-century and more David Cairns has been one of the world's pre-eminent Berlioz scholars, translating Berlioz's freewheeling memoirs and writing a monumental biography of the composer that earned a procession of awards. In Discovering Berlioz, Cairns presents nearly 40 essays from the past five decades that even now throw unexpected light on this most quixotic and profound of composers – firebrand and philosopher almost in the same breath. These articles follow the chronology of Berlioz's life, examine the influences of his provincial childhood on his music, the revelations of Virgil, Gluck, Shakespeare and Beethoven, the tribulations of his professional life in Paris, and finally focus on the masterpiece that crowned Berlioz's difficult life, the operatic epic Les Troyens. Discovering Berlioz also charts the history of Berlioz reception: the composer who in the mid-twentieth century was regarded as an eccentric outsider is now seen as one of the most vital figures in the history of western music – a re-assessment for which David Cairns himself deserves much of the credit.

Liszt and Virtuosity
Edited by ROBERT DORAN

In the annals of music history, Franz Liszt has long dominated the discussion of virtuosity. This collection of new essays by an international group of preeminent scholars offers a reevaluation of the concept and practices of virtuosity in the works of Liszt and other major and lesser-known musical figures (including Czerny, Schubert, Paganini, Berlioz, Chopin, Brahms, Debussy, and Marie Jaëlf). Set in the context of larger trends within music history, analysis, and performance studies, these wide-ranging explorations show the significance of Lisztian virtuosity for the music world today.

Augusta Browne and Woman of Letters in Nineteenth-Century America

BONNY MILLER

Augusta Browne’s five-decade career in music and letters reveals a gifted composer and author. Hailed as “one of the most prolific women composers in the USA before 1870,” Augusta Browne Garrett (c. 1820-1882) was also a dedicated music educator and music journalist. The Americaness of her story resounds across the decades: an earnest little girl growing up amidst a troubled family business; a young professor of music who burst onto the New York City musical scene; and an entrepreneur who resolutely sought publication of her music and rose to her final day. In this book, author Bonny Miller presents Browne’s unfamiliar story, assesses her musical works, and describes her literary publications.

BONNY H. MILLER is a pianist and independent scholar who has taught at universities in Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, and Virginia.

Brahms’s A German Requiem

Reconsidering Its Biblical, Historical, and Musical Contexts

R. ALLEN LOTT

Despite its entirely biblical text, Brahms’s A German Requiem is widely considered to espouse a theologically universal view. Lott systematically documents the Requiem’s early performance history, critical reception, and musical style, revealing that the work was widely regarded as a Christian and, indeed, a specifically Protestant one. Lott also explains how a knowledge of the biblical context of Brahms’s selected verses leads to a thorough reappraisal of Brahms’s masterpiece.

Musical Salon Culture in the Long Nineteenth Century

Edited by ANJA BUNZEL & NATASHA LOGES

Drawing on a wide range of scholarly approaches, this book uses the idea of the salon as a springboard to examine issues such as gender, religion, biography and performance; to explore the ways in which the salon was represented in different media; and to showcase the heterogeneity of the salon through a selection of case studies. It offers reconsiderations of familiar salons based in large cultural centres, as well as insights into lesser-known salons in both Europe and the United States. Bringing together an international group of scholars, the collection underscores the enduring impact of the European musical salon.

Widor on Organ Performance Practice and Technique

JOHN R. NEAR

In his Preface to the complete organ works of J. S. Bach, Charles-Marie Widor (1844-1937) – a leading figure of the French Romantic organ school – conveyed what he considered the essential maxims of organ performance practice and technique. These principles extend to his and his followers' organ compositions. John Near translates for the first time all the statements from Widor's Bach Preface that reflect his distinctive technique. These principles extend to his and his contemporaries, that illuminates Widor's viewed on organ playing. In this, he has been eminently successful.

The Karl Muck Scandal

Classical Music and Xenophobia in World War I America

MELISSA D. BURRAGE

The demonization, internment, and deportation of celebrated Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor Dr. Karl Muck, finally told, and placed in the context of World War I anti-German sentiment in the United States.

MELISSA D. BURRAGE, a former writing consultant at Harvard University Extension School, holds degrees from Harvard University and the University of East Anglia.

Nothing in the tangled history of "The Star-Spangled Banner" quite compares to a 1917 incident involving Karl Muck, the music director of the Boston Symphony. As Melissa D. Burrage relates in her new book . . . a brouhaha over the anthem led to the public shaming and eventual arrest of one of the world's leading conductors. Burrage's book is commendably even-handed in its treatment of Muck, declining to make an innocent victim out of him. – ALEX ROSS, THE NEW YORKER

Powerful . . . an exemplary piece of scholarship. It is painstakingly written, offering a compelling (and terrifyingly relevant) discussion of the power-play between culture, politics and the darker forces of humanity. ★★★★★ BBC MUSIC MAGAZINE

Claude Debussy

A Critical Biography

FRANÇOIS LESURE

Translation and Revised Edition by MARIE ROLF

François Lesure's "critical biography" of Claude Debussy (Fayard, 2003) is widely recognized by scholars as the most comprehensive and reliable account of that composer's life and career. Lesure's book presents a wealth of new information while debunking a number of myths that had developed over the years since the composer's death in 1918.

The present English translation and revised edition, by noted Debussy authority Marie Rolf, reflects recent scholarship and augments Lesure's seminal work with thousands of new notes, providing more precise information on crucial and sometimes contentious points.

FRANÇOIS LESURE (1923-2001) was director of the music division of the Bibliothèque nationale de France. MARIE ROLF is Professor of Music Theory at the Eastman School of Music.

Sir Henry Wood
Champion of J.S. Bach

HANNAH FRENCH

This book uncovers Wood’s pivotal role in the English Bach revival. Wood’s performances of works such as the St Matthew Passion and B Minor Mass caused a stir; the Brandenburg Concertos and Orchestral Suites became staple fixtures in the musical calendar; and his orchestral arrangements of Bach’s solo works and cantata arias were key to the popularisation of the composer in England. Illuminating a significant new aspect of the musical life of England before WWII, the book also demonstrates that Wood’s advocacy continues to influence perceptions of Bach even today.

Nadia Boulanger
Thoughts on Music

Edited and translated by JEANICE BROOKS & KIMBERLY FRANCIS

The impact of Nadia Boulanger (1887-1979) on twentieth-century music was vast: as pedagogue, composer, keyboardist, conductor, and impresario. Her extensive musical networks included figures such as Fauré, Stravinsky and Poulenc, and her advocacy helped establish the compositions of her sister Lili Boulanger. Boulanger wrote numerous essays and reviews throughout her career. Nadia Boulanger: Thoughts on Music presents the most important of these little-known texts, providing unparalleled insight into her thinking and illuminating aspects of musical culture in Europe and America from the point of view (unusual in that day) of a woman working in the Performing Arts at the highest level.

A Life beyond Music

MARIA RAZUMOVSKAYA

Heinrich Neuhaus (1888-1964) was one of the most charismatic and sought after pianist-pedagogues of his age. This first critical study explores his life and career and his friendships with the era’s greatest figures including the composer Karol Szymanowski (his cousin) and the poet Boris Pasternak. It draws on previously unseen documents relating to his imprisonment for criticizing the Soviet regime. Revealing how these influences shaped Neuhaus’s distinct vision of a performer’s subjectivity (what he called “autopsychography”), it illuminates how creative artists escaped the limitations imposed by Socialist Realism.

MARIA RAZUMOVSKAYA is a recital pianist and researcher, teaches at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama.

Adolf Busch
The Life of an Honest Musician

TULLY POTTER

Adolf Busch (1891-1952) was not only an all-round musician; he was also a moral beacon in troubled times. Now remembered as the first violin of the Busch String Quartet, which he founded in 1912, he was the greatest quartet-player of the last century and also the busiest solo violinist of the inter-War years, regularly performing the great concertos with such conductors as Toscanini, Walter, Furtwängler, Boult, Barbirolli and many others. He was, moreover, an outstanding composer whose works enjoyed performances both at home in Germany and further afield.

This biography, based on more than thirty years’ research, documents Busch’s life, examining his exemplary behaviour in the context of the tumultuous period in which he lived. Two volume set including two CDs.

Music in Their Time
The Memoirs and Letters of Dora and Hubert Foss

Edited by STEPHEN LLOYD,
DIANA SPARKES & BRIAN SPARKES

Hubert J. Foss (1899-1953) is best known for his work as the first music editor for Oxford University Press, while his wife, Dora, was a professional singer. Through the presentation of letters and memoirs, the book recreates a vivid picture of the musical world during the inter-war period, when there was a renaissance of English music. It includes letters sent to and received from such luminaries as Hamilton Hart, Constant Lambert, Edith Sitwell, Donald Tovey, Ralph Vaughan Williams, William Walton, Henry J. Wood, and many more. Many of the letters presented here have never been published before.

STEPHEN LLOYD is the author of William Walton: Music of Fire and Constant Lambert: Beyond the Rio Grande (both published by Boydell Press). DIANA SPARKES is the daughter of Hubert and Dora Foss. BRIAN SPARKES is her husband and an Emeritus Professor of Classical Archaeology.

Aaron Copland’s Hollywood Film Scores

PAULA MUSEGADES

One of America’s most beloved composers, Aaron Copland played a critical role in establishing a recognizable “American sound.” He is widely recognized as achieving this in concert-hall works and ballets, but he did so also, and no less influentially, in his film scores for Hollywood films, including Of Mice and Men (1939), Our Town (1940), The North Star (1943), The Red Pony (1949), and The Heiress (1949). Through his work in the Hollywood film industry, Copland introduced the moviegoing public to modern musical styles, while also establishing a lasting impact on Hollywood’s sound.

PAULA MUSEGADES is an Assistant Professor in Music and American Studies at Brandeis University.

Aaron Copland and the American Legacy of Gustav Mahler

MATTHEW MUGMON

Although Aaron Copland (1900-1990) is often credited with creating an unmistakably American musical style, he was strongly attracted to the music of Gustav Mahler. Drawing extensively on archival and musical materials, this is the first detailed exploration of Copland’s multifaceted relationship with Mahler’s music and its lasting consequences for music in America. Matthew Mugmon demonstrates that Copland, inspired by Mahler’s example, blended modernism and romanticism in fashioning a vision for American music in the twentieth century, and that he did so through his multiple roles as composer, teacher, critic, and orchestral tastemaker. Copland’s career-long engagement with Mahler’s music intersected with Copland’s own Jewish identity and with his links to such towering figures in American music as Nadia Boulanger, Serge Koussevitzky, and Leonard Bernstein.

MATTHEW MUGMON is Assistant Professor of Music at the University of Arizona.

Composing Myself and Other Texts

SIR ANDRZEJ PANUFNIK
Edited by MARTIN ANDERSON

At the centre of this volume of Panufnik’s writings is Composing Myself, the autobiography he wrote in 1985, long since a collector’s item and here republished in a fully annotated new edition. It is complemented by the complete programme notes he wrote to shed light on the impulse behind, and design of, his music, complete with the often visually striking diagrams he drew to articulate their formal logic. A third section includes his few other essays, including a 1955 report to the unsuspecting West of the true nature of Polish intellectual life under Communism, an insightful radio broadcast on Szymanowski and a brief tribute to Bartók. Finally, Part IV collects a sample of the interviews that Panufnik – wary of the microphone as a result of his experiences in Communist Poland – gave over the course of his career.

Leonard Bernstein and Washington, DC

Works, Politics, and Performances

Edited by ANDREW WEAVER, ALICIA KOPFSTEIN-PENK & DANIEL ABRAHAM

Composer, conductor, activist, and icon of twentieth-century America, Leonard Bernstein (1918-92) had a rich association with Washington, DC. Although he never lived there, the US capital was the site of some of the most important moments in his life and work, as he engaged with the nation’s struggles and triumphs. By examining Bernstein through the lens of DC, this book offers new insights into his life and music from the 1940s through the 1980s, including his role in building DC’s artistic landscape, his political-diplomatic aims, his works that received premieres and other early performances in DC, and his relationships with the nation’s liberal and conservative political elites. The collection also contributes new perspectives on twentieth-century American history, government, and culture, helping to elucidate the political function of music in American democracy.

DANIEL ABRAHAM is Professor of Music at American University, ALICIA KOPFSTEIN-PENK is Adjunct Professorial Lecturer at American University, and ANDREW H. WEAVER is Professor of Musicology at The Catholic University of America.

Anneliese Landau’s Life in Music

NAZI Germany to Émigré California

LILY E. HIRSCH

Musicologist Anneliese Landau worked in early German radio, the Nazi-era Jewish Culture League, and the Jewish Centers Association in Los Angeles. In these roles, she came to know many significant historical figures: among them, the composer Arnold Schoenberg, conductor Bruno Walter, and rabbi-philosopher Leo Baeck. Hirsch’s biography of Landau offers fresh perspective on the Nazi period as well as a musical life in southern California. It is also a unique story of survival: an account of one woman’s confrontation with other people’s expectations of her, as a woman and a Jew.

LILY E. HIRSCH is the author of A Jewish Orchestra in Nazi Germany: Musical Politics and the Berlin Jewish Culture League.

Personal Trauma and Artistic Creativity

AMY LYNN WŁODARSKI

This book is the first comprehensive study of the musical and intellectual work of George Rochberg, widely acknowledged as one of the most prominent musical postmodernists. Drawn from unpublished materials including diaries, letters, sketches, and personal papers, the book traces the impact of two specific personal traumas – Rochberg’s service as an infantryman in World War II and the premature death of his son – on his influential postwar ideas about humanism, musical quotation, and neotonality.

Gregory Haimovsky
A Pianist’s Odyssey to Freedom

This book is the extraordinary story of a Russian-Jewish concert pianist who resisted and triumphed over the USSR’s cultural prohibitions. In doing so, he succeeded in performing and recording contemporary Western music, especially works by Olivier Messiaen that had been banned until then. Through Messiaen’s profound and complex works, Haimovsky found his path to spiritual and artistic freedom. Here is a view of a composer’s creative world and how his music is characterised by simplicity yet sophistication. His music is encompassed nearly 550 compositions in every field of music. This book provides a global view of Peter Maxwell Davies’s music, integrating a number of resonant themes in the composer’s work while covering a representative cross-section of his vast output – his work list

Howard Skempton
Conversations and Reflections on Music
Edited by ESTHER CAVETT & MATTHEW HEAD

Howard Skempton (b. 1947) has contributed to British musical life for more than half a century, as composer, performer and commentator. His music is characterised by simplicity yet sophistication and is appreciated by both lay and specialist listeners in equal measure. Skempton studied in London with Cornelius Cardew in the late 1960s, co-founding the Scratch Orchestra, and has written over 600 pieces since then, informed by and informing compositional trends. This book offers an intimate view of a composer’s creative world and how others may interpret it. It includes manuscripts of six previously unpublished compositions and images of Skempton and his collaborators.

The Music of Peter Maxwell Davies
NICHOLAS JONES & RICHARD MCGREGOR

This book provides a global view of Peter Maxwell Davies’s music, integrating a number of resonant themes in the composer’s work while covering a representative cross-section of his vast output – his work list encompasses nearly 550 compositions in every established genre. Making sustained reference to Davies’s own words, articles and programme notes as well as privileged access to primary source material from his estate, the book illuminates the composer’s practices and approaches while shaping a discourse around his music.

The Music of James MacMillan
PHILLIP A. COOKE

This is the first scholarly study of MacMillan’s life, work and aesthetic. From his beginnings in rural Ayrshire and his early work with Sir Peter Maxwell Davies, through the international breakthrough success of The Confession of Isobel Gowdie (1990), the continuing success of works such as the percussion concerto Veni, Veni, Emmanuel (1992) and his choral pieces, to his current position as one of the most prominent British composers of his generation, the book explores MacMillan’s compositional influences over time. The book also considers MacMillan’s strong Catholic faith, politics and his on-going relationship with Scottish nationalism. With unprecedented access to interviews, compositional drafts and previously unpublished materials, the book offers insights into what it means to be a prominent composer and artist in the twenty-first century.

Julian Anderson
JULIAN ANDERSON & CHRISTOPHER DINGLE

Julian Anderson is renowned internationally as one of the leading composers of his generation. This substantial book of conversations with the scholar and critic Christopher Dingle provides insights into the practicalities and psychology of composing. Of particular value are the glimpses of Anderson’s thoughts on works in progress, including the period from finishing the score for his ENSO opera Theban to its first production, as well as his violin concerto and his Berlin Philharmonic commission In cementi. While these conversations reflect the fact that Anderson is first and foremost a composer, his extensive cultural hinterland is apparent. Revealing much about the workings of the musical world, these conversations will not only be essential reading for composers and composition students, but also contemporary music lovers more generally.

British Music after Britten
ARNOLD WHITTALL

This book considers the impact of the life and work of Benjamin Britten (1913–1976) on British composers who, with the exception of Michael Tippett and Robert Simpson, were all born between the 1930s and the 1980s. Bringing together revised reprints of essays, reviews and analyses first published between 1995 and 2018, it offers a survey of a cross-section of contemporary classical composition in the UK.

Music and Faith
Conversations in a Post-Secular Age

JOHN CUNNINGHAM

This book explores examples of how the Christian story is still expressed in music and how it is received by those who experience that art form, whether in church or not. Through conversations with a variety of writers, artists, scientists, historians, atheists, church laity and clergy, the term post-secular emerges as an accurate description of the relationship between faith, religion, spirituality, agnosticism and atheism in the west today. Music and Faith is centred on those who, by-and-large, are not professional musicians, philosophers or theologians, but who find that music and faith are bound up with each other and with their own lives.

Composing History
National Identities and the English Masque Revival, 1860-1920

DEBORAH HECKERT

This book focuses on the masque, an early modern English musico-dramatic genre that was reinvented during the Victorian period as a vehicle for nationalistic, historically inflected popular entertainments. As conceptions of national identity became increasingly dependent on the image of “Merrie England” located in the English Renaissance and in the folk traditions of the countryside, genres such as the masque that were integrally connected to these ideological constructions became important ways in which national identity was represented. This in turn had profound ramifications for the ideologies of the English Musical Renaissance and its construction of a national musical idiom at the turn of the twentieth century.

DEBORAH HECKERT is a Lecturer at Stony Brook University and has taught at the University of Virginia, Utah State University, and Brooklyn College-CUNY.

Musical Journeys
Performing Migration in Twentieth-Century Music

FLORIAN SCHEDING

Focussing on migratory moments in the works of Hans Eisler in 1930s Paris, Máté Szabó and István Anhalt in 1990s Montreal, Musical Journeys explores concepts of migratory aesthetics and links these to wider musical and socio-cultural contexts. At the same time, it tackles some of the broad themes that such migratory moments invoke, such as nationalism, the role of cultural institutions, and Jewishness.

The book weaves detailed biographical and contextual historical knowledge, analytical insights into music, and a broad understanding of concepts and ideas from migration studies and other historiographic fields into a complex fabric that does justice to the complexity of the migratory experience and creative musical responses to it.

Songs for a Revolution
The German Protest Tradition of 1848

ECKHARD JOHN & DAVID ROBB

The socially volatile period of the Vormärz and the 1848 Revolution in Germany produced a wealth of political protest song. This book makes available twenty-two protest songs from that time, both lyrics and melodies. It also charts the history of their reception—from their point of origin up until their revival in the folk and political song movements of East and West Germany. That appropriation of the songs has shaped today’s cultural memory of the 1848 period, which in turn illuminates the functioning of political ideology in these reception processes.

Beyond Fingal’s Cave
Ossian in the Musical Imagination
JAMES PORTER

Beyond Fingal’s Cave: Ossian in the Musical Imagination is the first study in English of musical works stimulated by James Macpherson’s Poems of Ossian, published in the 1760s and purported to be the work of an ancient Scottish bard. It examines the effect of the poems on composers, especially as the Romantic Era in literature and the arts began to take shape. The poems were a central element in the development of Romanticism, and over 300 musical works based on the poems survive: Beethoven, Schubert, Mendelssohn, Brahms and Massenet are but the best known figures to have used the poems as a source of compositional inspiration.

The Operas of Sergei Prokofiev
CHRISTINA GUILLAUMIER

The operas of Sergei Prokofiev (1891–1953) mark a significant contribution to twentieth-century music and theatre. Opera was Prokofiev’s preferred genre; not counting unfinished and juvenile works, he wrote a total of eight. Yet, to date, little has been published about the context, rationale or musical and compositional processes behind this output. This book is the first in the English language to engage with the composer’s operatic output in its entirety and provides a contextual, critical and musico-analytical account of all of Prokofiev’s operas, including those juvenile works that are unproduced as well as the incomplete works composed towards the end of his life. It also includes synopses of the operas. Drawing on a wealth of archival material and other sources, the book provides the compelling untold story of Prokofiev’s opera composer.

CHRISTINA GUILLAUMIER is a music historian, pianist and writer on music. She is currently Head of Undergraduate Programmes at the Royal College of Music in London.

Musical Theater in Eighteenth-Century Parma
Entertainment, Sovereignty, Reform
MARGARET R. BUTLER

French and Italian varieties of opera have informed one another from the genre’s first decades onward. Yet we still have only a hazy view of what those intersections meant to a given opera’s creators and audiences. Margaret Butler’s Musical Theater in Eighteenth-Century Parma: Entertainment, Sovereignty, Reform examines performance, spectatorship, and politics at the Bourbon-controlled Italian city of Parma in the mid-eighteenth century. The book elucidates the complicated circumstances in which entertainments were created that spoke not only to Parma’s multicultural audiences but also to an increasingly cosmopolitan Europe.

Opposing Apartheid on Stage
King Kong the Musical
TYLER FLEMING

In 1959, King Kong, an interracial jazz opera, swept across South Africa. Despite taking place roughly ten years after the beginning of apartheid, this production, with its white directors and producers and African cast, orchestra and composer, received near-universal acclaim across the country. Often considered a key turning point within South African popular culture, the King Kong musical, its performers, and their combined legacies significantly shaped South African cultural history and global popular culture. Using the story of the jazz opera as a means to explore various aspects of South African cultural history, Opposing Apartheid on Stage unpacks the musical’s importance and historical significance.

Kitty Clive, or The Fair Songster
BERTA JONCUS

Kitty Clive (1711–1785) was a top London stage star. Singing powered her ascent and, for twenty years, was foundational to her success as she came to dominate spoken as well as musical comedy. Her protean powers transfixed audiences, whether in low-style productions or in works by masters like Purcell, Shakespeare, and Dryden. Celebrities such as Handel and Henry Fielding wrote vehicles for her. In the 1740s, critical opinion turned against Clive and the financial power she wielded. She quit serious song and took to caricaturing herself on stage. Clive’s career reveals to us gorgeous song otherwise lost. For music historians, theatre scholars, and anyone curious about performance history and star production in eighteenth-century Britain, her story is not to be missed.

BERTA JONCUS is Senior Lecturer in Music at Goldsmiths, University of London.

Berta Joncus has masterfully described the career of singer-actress-playwright Catherine Clive, a neglected star of the eighteenth-century English and Irish theatres from a charismatic ingenue songstress into a plump, carping older woman. . . . This brilliant book highlights the triumphs and challenges facing a talented, determined woman in an age that regularly satirized the second sex. – Felicity Nussbaum, Distinguished Research Professor, UCLA

An insightful look at the urban sensibility that gives the Great American Songbook its pizzazz.

MICHAEL LASSER, a former teacher and theater critic, is host of the syndicated public-radio show Fascinatin’ Rhythm (winner of the 1994 Peabody Award) and the author of two previous books.

Michael Lasser’s City Songs is the most engaging, comprehensive, and provocative examination of the Great American Songbook that I’ve encountered . . . Lasser writes with the “dazzling economy” of the best lyricists and lyricists that he elucidates. His book convinced me that the songs of the first half of the twentieth century were indeed “urban creatures” that “sang the city electric” by merging sentiment and wit into a unique amalgam, mingling the “jingle of jazz and the jangle of slang” with “the clang and clamor” of the American metropolis, as Lasser so unforgettably characterizes it!

Heinrich Schenker’s Conception of Harmony
ROBERT W. WASON & MATTHEW BROWN

What makes the compositions of Handel, Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, Chopin, and Brahms stand out as great works of art? Heinrich Schenker (1868–1935) tried to answer this question in his deceptively titled Harmonielehre (roughly: Treatise on Harmony, 1906), but this treatise has never been studied systematically and in close detail. Heinrich Schenker’s Conception of Harmony approaches the 1906 book as a synthesis of ancient ideas and very new ones. It also delves into Schenker’s later ideas on harmony and the origins of the much-used (but seriously abridged) English translation (1954).

Verse and Voice in Byrd’s Song Collections of 1588
JEREMY L. SMITH

William Byrd (c. 1540-1623), England’s premier Renaissance composer, devoted considerable attention to the poetry and prose of his native language. This book, the first full-length study specifically devoted to Byrd’s English-texted music, provides a close reading of all of the works he published in the late 1580s, constituting nearly half of his total song output. It delves into the musical, political, literary, and, specifically, the sequential qualities of Byrd’s 1588 and 1589 published collections as a whole, revealing, explaining, and interpreting an overall grand narrative.

LEX EISENHARDT

One of Europe’s foremost experts on early guitar music explores this little known but richly rewarding repertoire. LEX EISENHARDT is one of Europe’s foremost experts on early guitar. He teaches both classical guitar and historical plucked instruments at the Conservatory of Amsterdam.

[Eng]aging, well written, and well researched. It is a much-needed contribution to the current discussion of baroque guitar history [. . .], stringing, and performance. Eisenhardt’s summary of past and current thought on performance related issues, combined with his references to translated original source material, allows even novices to understand and engage with the issues presented.

Music in Vienna
1700, 1800, 1900
DAVID WYN JONES

The image of Vienna as a musical city is a familiar one. This book explores the history of music in Vienna, focussing on three different epochs, 1700, 1800 and 1900. DAVID WYN JONES is Professor of Music at Cardiff University.

David Wyn Jones’s stupendous study manages to have the reader learn anew many facets of the seemingly standard musical fare of classical music in Vienna . . . rich material that is presented in such a persuasive and superbly written manner that the work will reward the reader with a new and comprehensive perspective.

Listen with the Ear of the Heart
Music and Monastery Life at Weston Priory
MARIA S. GUARINO

Benedictine monks gather for communal prayer upwards of five times per day, every day. Their prayers, called the Divine Office, are almost entirely sung. Benedictines are famous for Gregorian Chant, but the original folk-inspired music of the monks of Wester Priory in Vermont is among the most familiar in post-Vatican II American Catholicism. Using the ethnomusicalogical methods of fieldwork and taking inspiration from the monks’ own way of encountering the world, this book offers a contemplative engagement with music, prayer, and everyday life.

MARIA S. GUARINO received her PhD in critical and comparative studies in music from the University of Virginia. She specializes in ethnography, religious life, Benedictine monasticism, and contemplative practices.

Brahms and His Poets
A Handbook
NATASHA LOGES

Covering Brahms’s 32 song opuses published during four decades of song-writing, this book offers a way of understanding what Brahms believed to be the right poetic basis for his immortal music. It is designed to be an essential reference tool for students and scholars of Johannes Brahms, as well as performers and lovers of his songs.

NATASHA LOGES is Head of Postgraduate Programmes at the Royal College of Music.

Turn to any one of these entries and your understanding of why and how Brahms set a particular text will be deepened many times over... the book’s value to interpreters as well to the much wider community of Lieder-lovers cannot be overestimated – it will surely be regarded as an indispensable resource, but can also be dipped into for pleasure as well as information and insight.

Widor
A Life beyond the Toccata
JOHN R. NEAR

This book brings to light the life and work of one of France’s most distinguished musicians in the most complete biography in any language of Charles-Marie Widor.

JOHN R. NEAR is Professor Emeritus of Music, Principia College.

John R. Near has honoured his subject by combining powerfully muscular English prose with research so staggeringly comprehensive as to be what fashionable circles would call ‘a game-changer’. . . New insights aplenty. . . A pleasure to read and to own. THE ORGAN

The definitive work about the composer of one of the two most famous organ pieces in the world [the Toccata from Organ Symphony No. 5]. John Near struck pay dirt when he located a 103-page manuscript of an unpublished “Souvenirs Autobiographiques” [that] allows Widor to speak for himself and allows his biographer many opportunities to elucidate those events. Absolutely indispensable! THE AMERICAN ORGANIST

Maurice Duruflé
The Man and His Music
JAMES E. FRAZIER

A deeply researched biography of the great French organist, who composed some of the best-loved works in the organ repertory – and the masterful Requiem.

JAMES E. FRAZIER holds advanced degrees in philosophy, organ, theology, and sacred music from St. Alphonsus College, Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, Hartt School of Music, the Yale University Divinity School, and the Yale Institute of Sacred Music.

Frazier’s book will no doubt stand as a defining work in Duruflé scholarship and nurture scholars of 20th-century French organ music for years to come. THE AMERICAN ORGANIST

One of the best musical biographies I have read for many years: sound in musical and, for the most part, in historical judgment . . . sympathetic without being sycophantic, and most gracefully written. Duruflé deserves no less GRAMOPHONE

Gay Guerrilla
Julius Eastman and His Music
Edited by RENÉE LEVINE PACKER & MARY JANE LEACH

A compelling portrait of composer-performer Julius Eastman’s enigmatic and intriguing life and music.

RENÉE LEVINE PACKER’s book This Life of Sounds: Evenings for New Music in Buffalo received an ASCAP Deems Taylor Award for excellence. MARY JANE LEACH is a composer and freelance writer.

A composer of visionary power, a singer with a cavernous bass voice, a collaborator with the diverse likes of Meredith Monk and Pierre Boulez, Eastman had long been a fixture of the New York Music scene . . . Part of the pleasure of Eastman’s rediscovery has been the belated, deserving reinsertion of a black, gay figure into music history.

From Silence to Sound
Beethoven’s Beginnings

This book discusses the myriad ways in which Beethoven begins his works and the structural, rhetorical, and emotional implications of these beginnings for listeners. Examining the opening moments of nearly 200 compositions, it offers a new method of analysis of Beethoven’s music. At the same time, it sets Beethoven’s work in context through a close study of beginnings in the compositions of the Classical Era.

JEREMY YUDKIN is Professor of Music and Co-Director of the Center for Beethoven Research at Boston University.
